Manschet tennaht

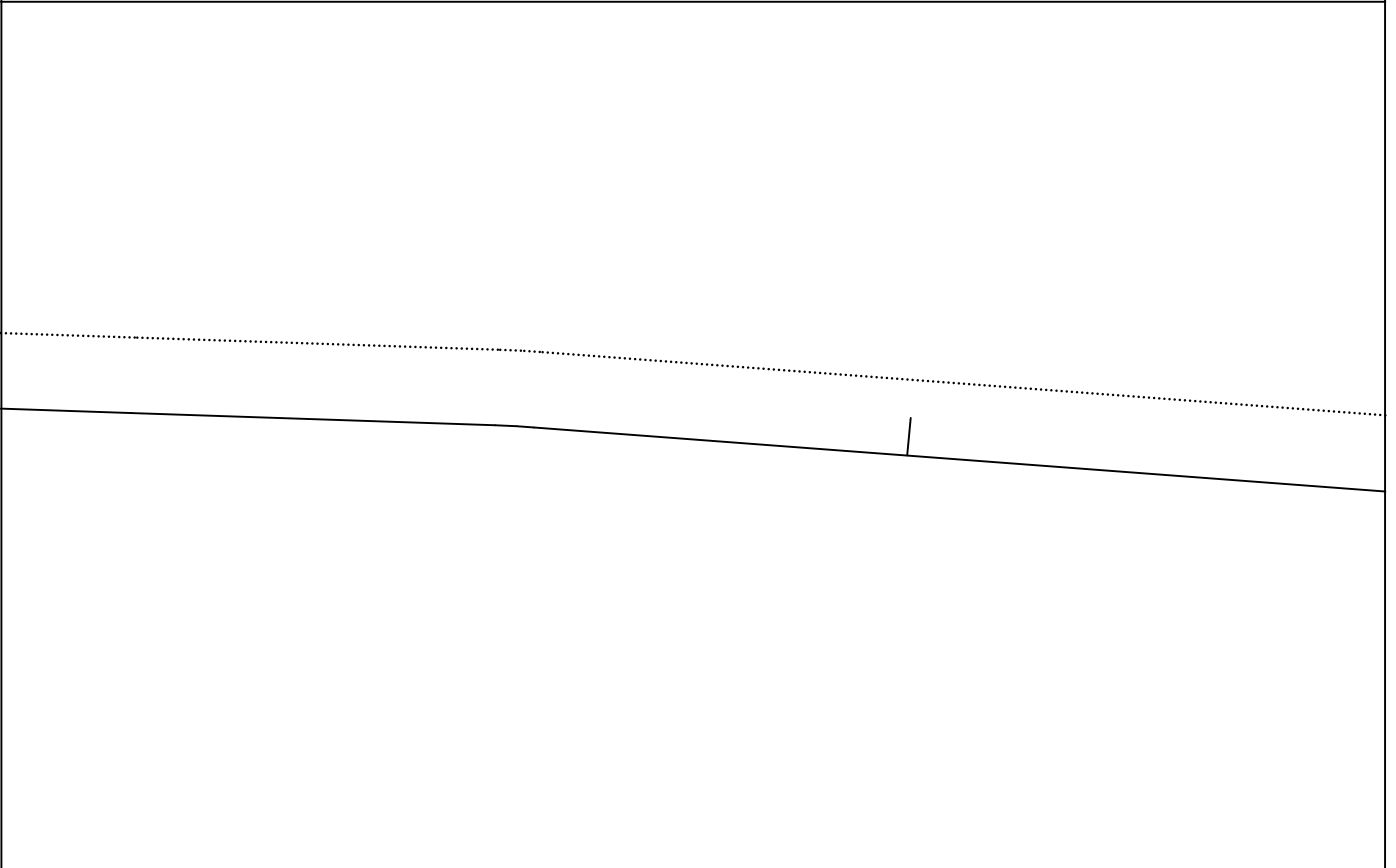

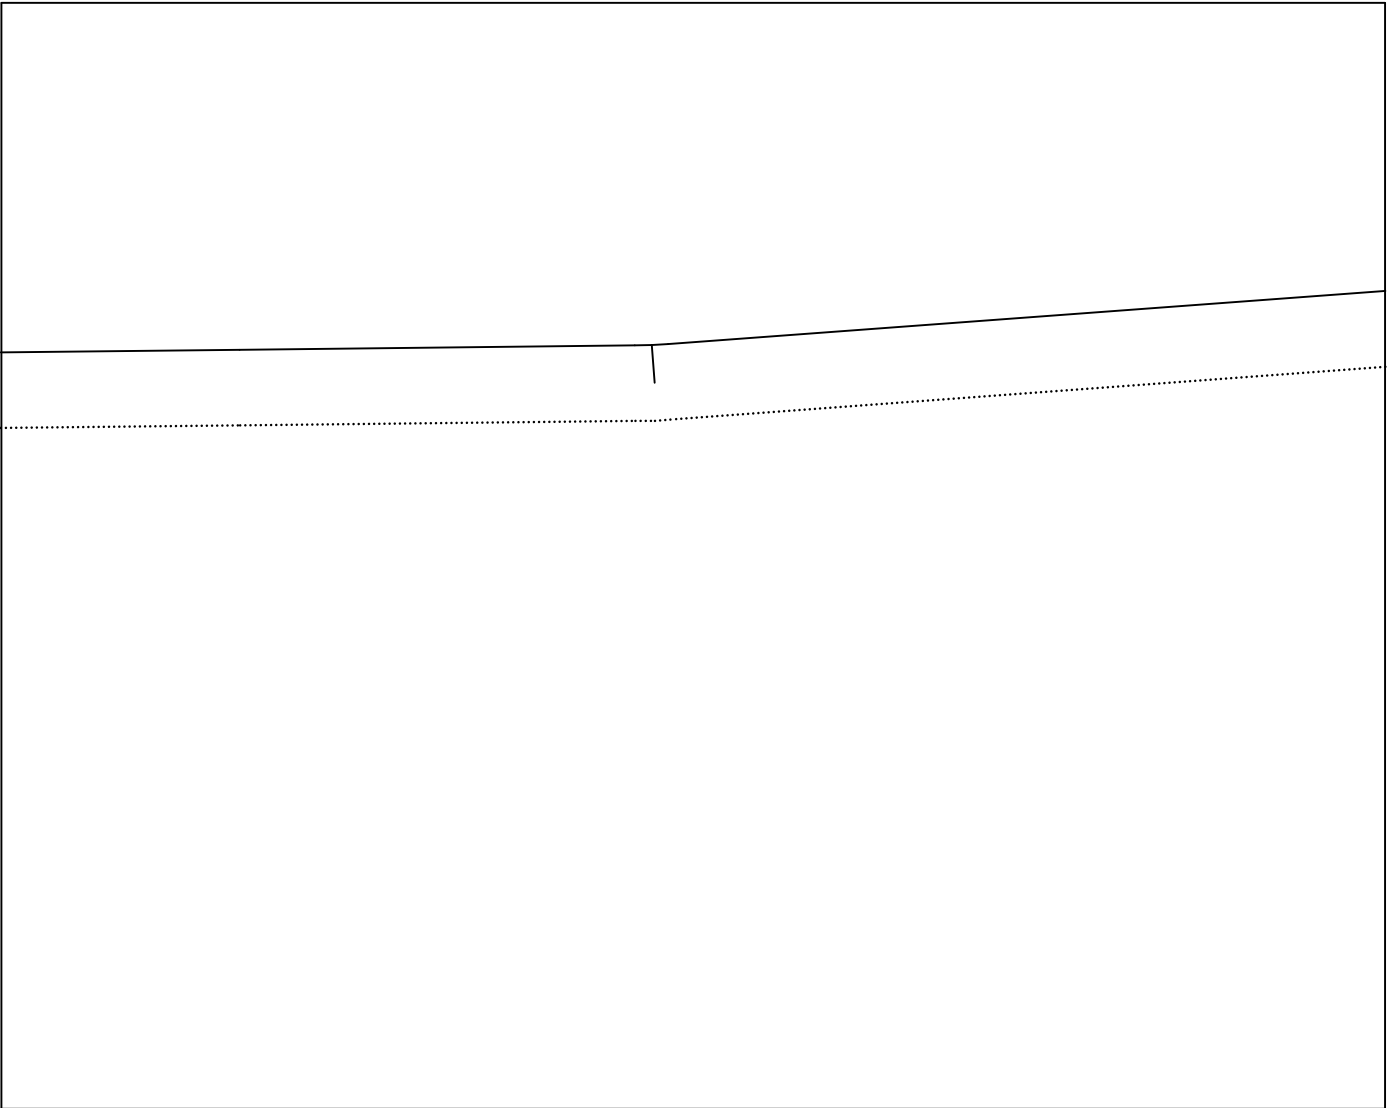

The diagram shows a technical drawing of a sleeve cuff seam. It features a solid outer line and a dotted inner line, with a horizontal line in between. A label 'Manschet tennaht' is positioned to the right of the dotted line, with a short horizontal line pointing to the space between the solid and dotted lines. The drawing is partially enclosed by a larger, irregular shape on the left and bottom.
